LEGISLATIVE LEAGUE FORMED TO PROMOTE GOOD LEGISLATION

To Look After Rural Districts and Third Class Cities

HAVE ALMOST 100 MEMBERS

Independent Republican members of the House at Harrisburg have organized the Legislative League, with Representative Robert L. Wallace, of Lawrence county as chairman and floor leader. The object of the league is to guide the house on legislation for the rural districts, and third class cities. It will support fully the legislative program of Governor Sprout. A steering committee has been selected to study all legislation in which the league is interested and bring out its merits or demerits on the floor.

The league, Chairman Wallace announces has made some alliances in the house and will have strength enough to defeat any measure which it does not consider meritorious. He claims further that it may have sufficient strength to pass some measures.

Members of the new league count on a voting strength including their alleged alliances of from 75 to 100. Ordinarily this would be a majority in the house where there are always several vacancies.

"Pro-Sprout and pro-good legislation" is the way Chairman Wallace describes the purposes of the new body.

HOSPITAL ANNOYED BY A FALSE STORY

During the past few days the Superintendent and other officials of the Charleroi-Monessen hospital have been frequently annoyed by telephone calls, making inquiries as to presence of a new-born babe at the institution, which was reported to have talked at intervals of every three hours. These calls have come from Charleroi, Monessen and other points in this immediate vicinity and have caused the hospital authorities considerable concern.

Report was, that the hospital authorities were actually charging an admission fee to see this wonderful baby.

Miss Montana in charge of the hospital, desires to say in this public manner, that there is absolutely no foundation for these stories, and respectfully requests that no further inquiries concerning this hoax be made at the hospital. The stories told are not true and if there be no further inquiries of this character the superintendent and attaches will feel deeply obligated to the public.

ASK FOR INSTRUCTIONS TO ACQUIT MAN OF MURDER CHARGE

Say State Did Not Make
Out a Case Against

COURT TO RULE ON POINT

The question of whether the case of the commonwealth against Paul Keleson, indicted for the killing of Andy Danko at Ellsworth, last July, will go to the jury was to be decided by Judge Brownson in criminal court at Washington today.

After the commonwealth had presented all its evidence and rested its case Wednesday afternoon attorneys for the defendant asked the court to give binding instructions to the jury for a verdict of not guilty. This raised a point which was vigorously argued by the attorneys for the commonwealth and the defendant, in which it was insisted by the attorneys representing Keleson that the state had not produced any testimony to show that the defendant had committed the deed.

During the presentation of evidence the attorneys for the defense did not cross examine any of the witnesses, except the chemist who had analyzed the stains on the alleged blood-stained hatchet.

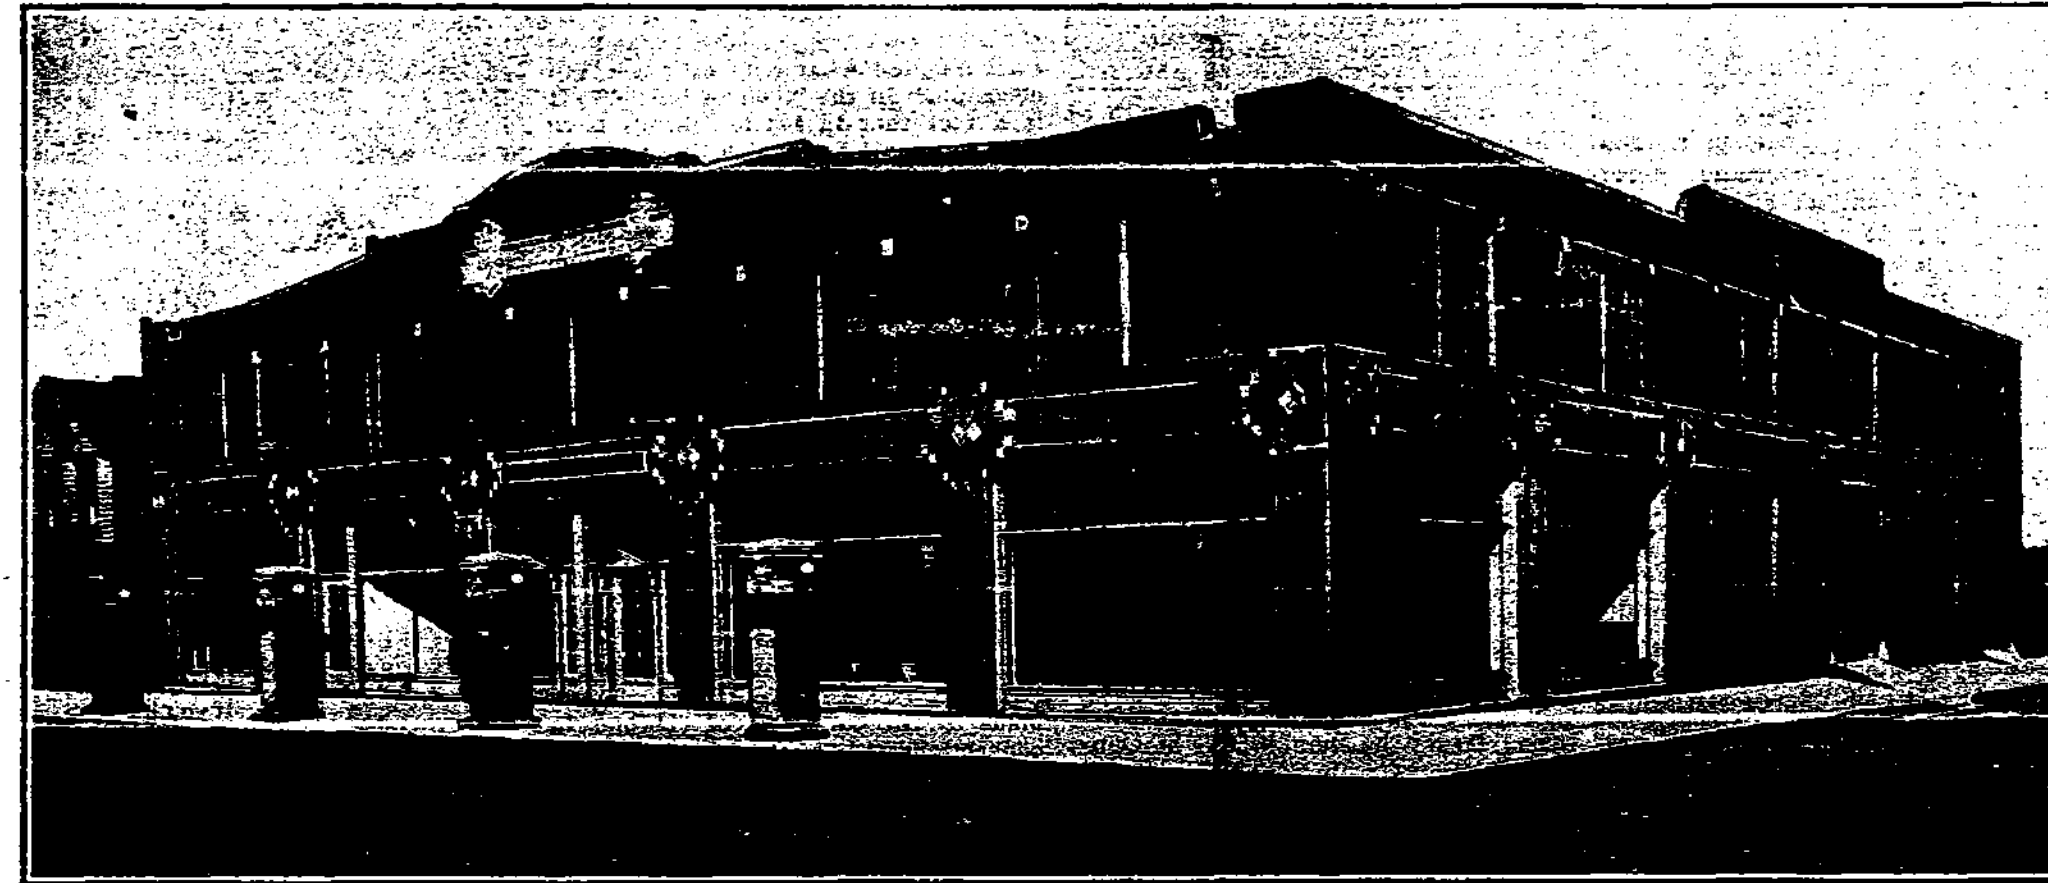

Mrs. Danko, wife of the murdered man, who had been held as a material witness in the county jail since last July, did not disclose anything. A daughter was called, who testified to some things she considered improper which went on between her mother and Keleson during her father's absence. There was some evidence that the defendant had been paying attention to Mrs. Danko and that these attentions had been resented by Danko. It also appeared that Danko had been driven from his own house. Keleson appeared to be the man about the house in the Danko home.

Danko was killed while on his way to work on the night of July 11, having been assaulted from behind with a hatchet, receiving wounds from which he died a few hours later.

SEVERE PENALTIES FOR AUTO THIEVES

If a bill introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature should become a law, automobile thieves will have hard sledding in the Keystone State, if they are apprehended. Representative Hollingsworth, of Chester county, has introduced a measure which provides that if a person steals a motor vehicle or is accessory before the fact or receives or purchases a car, knowing it to be stolen, the penalty upon conviction will be a fine not exceeding $5,000 and imprisonment not exceeding ten years.

BIG PRODUCTION AT COYLE THEATRE

"Hearts of the World" a D. W. Griffith production that required eighteen months in the making and which is destined to be the master piece of this dramatic genius surpassing both the "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance" will be the attraction at the Coyle Theatre, Friday and Saturday February 14 and 15. Matinees will be given each day at 2.15. Friday evening it will open at 8 o'clock, while on Saturday evening two shows will be given, one at 6:30 and the other at 9 o'clock. That "Hearts of the World" has established a new high record for even a Griffith production may be gained from the fact that it has been shown in Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities upwards of more than six hundred times at $2 prices. That it is a most unusual achievement is evident from the announcement that David Lloyd George and other high officials of the British and French nations not only gave Mr. Griffith their most hearty co-operation in the taking of the principal scenes, but personally appear in the play.

Manager Coyle is sure the picture will please the patrons of Charleroi, which is said to be the "sweetest love story ever told." It is not a war play. It is in two parts, the first showing the life of an ordinary French family before the war, and the second the experiences of these people when the great conflict ended in victory for the allies.

Don't neglect your eyes; come in and let us examine them and fit up with the correct glasses. H. Porter, Jeweler and Optician. Registered optometrist. 213-12

Work Clever Scheme To Victimize Banks

A number of banks of Washington, Pa., were victimized recently by a has worked successfully in a number of towns in this section of the county, wheeling a baby-go-cart, visited several of them and presented a check in this way. The Wellsburg bank for $25 on a Wellsburg, W. Va. bank and asked to have $15 in cash and $10 placed on a savings account. She was accommodated in a number of instances being given the money and a pass book with $10 marked up to her credit in the savings department. A few days later the checks came back from Wellsburg with the information that they were no good. It

A MILITARY COURSE FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

Representative John R. K. Scott of Philadelphia introduced in the House at Harrisburg a resolution providing for the immediate action on the part of the school boards of first, second and third class school districts in providing for military training in the high schools of these districts. The resolution sets forth that the training of the war department of the United States has established a course in military training in high schools and colleges, under the supervision of an army officer and that this course is made available for the use of high schools. The measure was read and referred by Speaker Spangler to the military committee. The Scott resolution is in keeping with two bills he offered on Monday providing for the establishment of a military training commission and the adoption of military training courses in high schools, colleges and universities and normal schools.

SPEAKING OF KINGS

Big and little some fifteen or twenty rulers by divine right from absolute monarchs all the way down the line to grand dukes, have been kicked off their thrones during the last two years.

It has been a period of extreme uneasiness for the heads that wore the crown.

And now it is not yet. For the peoples of a great portion of Europe, heretofore under the hand of autocracy have tasted of the sweets of liberty.

On most of them it has had much the same effect as the Mexican loco weed has upon the longhorned steers of the Sonora plains.

It has stamped the whole outfit. Set them milling around in circles. Running amuck as it were and going each other right and left without discrimination or regard for past associations. Fired them with the blood lust.

And out of it all must come eventually a greater respect in the heart of kings for the rights of their subjects. A wiping out of absolute monarchy and the oppressions and extortions that have stood second in the list of divine rights.

Incidentally a boom for the form of government planned and so ably executed under the direction of Uncle Sam.

It may be some little while delayed but one of these days sooner or later kingdoms and principalities and monarchies are going to be tossed finally and completely into the discard.

Folks are going to rule themselves. Governments are going to be representative. Might isn't going to keep on forever being right.

Uncle Sam is largely responsible for this. It has cost us something like $20,000,000,000 to teach the world its lesson. It will cost us another eight or ten billion to complete. But to the world to us, to humanity in general, it is a bargain.

For it was a freeman who said "Give me liberty or give me death."

Every free man echoes that sentiment today.

Let every free man support it with his dollars in the coming Victory-Liberty loan.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The Literary Digest believes farmers in general to be opposed to "daylight saving" on the ground that it robs them of an hour of rest in the morning and adds an hour to their working day in the evening.

The farmer who lets himself be fooled out of an hour of sleep by the clock is a fool. The farmer does not work by the whistle. There is nobody to tell him when to report. He can regulate his hours by the sun—and does. He is early to rise in summer and later in the winter. Also, he remains longer out of bed in summer and retires earlier in winter.

What is to prevent him continuing his program no matter what the clock says. If it is dark at 5, why he can sleep until six and work an hour longer at night if he is so inclined. The clock need not mean anything to him.

But in the city it is different. These men work in masses and under supervision. Trolley schedules must be arranged for their convenience; restaurants must cater to their wants in a hundred ways they must be closely co-ordinated. Daylight saving has been a boon to city dwellers and they are not going to surrender it without the hottest kind of a fight.

A NEW FLAG

A new kind of service flag is suggested on which the number of stars shall indicate the number of discharged United States soldiers employed in a given shop, factory, or other industry. One may readily believe that such a flag will become popular, not only as an expression of the desire of an employer to provide work for soldiers, but as a canny advertisement. The majority of the young Americans who went to war are coming back more alert and vigorous for the experience; and the employer who can show a number of them in his business will presumably be able to give better service to the public in proportion to the stars on his flag. It is indicative of this new alertness and ambition that many of the boys who come back are not very keen for the "old jobs," which have sometimes been a bit over-enthusiastic, but are looking for something new and better. And men in that frame of mind are just the sort that wise employers are looking for.

MODERN HERALDRY

In the use of devices and weapons that linked the great war with the wars of preceding centuries the adoption of a kind of heraldry by the armies revived also the individuality of medieval shields and banners. Sometimes this heraldry turned out to be mistaken symbolism as in the case of the German aviator who emblazoned his fighting plane with a Bavarian lion in pursuit of a French cock. The emblems varied according to tastes; at Indian shooting an arrow, the flying stork, the Indian head with a which Lufberry decorated his machine, thimble, serpent, an ancient token of wisdom and speed, a dove and comet. In an older timesign insignia would, no doubt, have become heraldry. In the Twentieth century they served simply to express the brave gravity and humor of youth.

AN HONORABLE RECORD

It is well, indeed, that a word should be spoken just now for the men who did not get to the front, and the remainder of their services comes effectively from the columns of such periodicals as "Treat 'Em Rough," edited by Emey in the interest of the men of the Tank Corps. "The man who was physically, mentally and morally fit," says this journal, "who pledged himself to his country, heart, soul and body, but who through the exigencies of the situation never had a chance really to answer the call, offered everything and in many cases made tremendous sacrifices. Only those who have gone away, however, can be welcomed back; and those of the even larger army whose places were still in the training camps, and in war service at home, are glad enough to join in the welcome."

THE SEED CATALOGUE

The seed catalogues are coming. Now that the war is over, plenty of ink is being used, too. During the next month or two, thousands of American people will spend their evenings planning their garden plots. Vegetables are still given precedence in the catalogues but much space is again devoted to flowers. Garden-making next season will naturally be on a more normal basis than for the last two years. Fewer lawns, perhaps, will be plowed up to make potato patches, while flower beds and borders will be restored. The demand for flowering plants in England is said to be astonishing, although it has persisted throughout the war. As the poet has phrased the thought "Flowers are triumphant assertions that a ray of beauty out-values all the utilities of man."

LOWER OHIO RIVER MEN COMING NORTH

Lower Ohio rivermen are reported as flocking to Pittsburgh to secure berths and according to veterans in the service, this is a serious panicky conditions in the labor world. A large number of Southern coal companies have tied up their boats until such time when there will be a greater demand for fuel. In the Pittsburgh district more than one-half of the towboats are tied up and it is said that only about 12 boats are towing on the Monongahela river. The greater number of which are operating for the Carnegie line.

AN EXAMPLE OF HEROIC DETERMINATION

From the Evening Post, New York, February 4—Notable among the deeds showing the devotion and determination of the men of the 27th Division are those of Private James C. French, of the 107th Infantry, who, despite two wounds, refused to go to the rear, saying, "I haven't got a shot at 'em yet." and John Paul Henry, also of the 107th, who, although suf-

ELLSWORTH MAN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Paul Kalesson of Ellsworth, was put on trial on Tuesday in criminal court at Washington before Judge Brownson on a charge of murder. The Commonwealth is asking for a verdict of murder in the first degree. The defendant was held and indicted for the death of Andy Danko at Ellsworth, July 11, 1918. Danko's death was due to frightful wounds on the head inflicted by a hatchet. He was waylaid on his way to his work late on the night of July 11.

The Commonwealth will insist that the fatal wounds were inflicted by a hatchet in the hands of Kalesson and that the killing was the outcome of trouble between Kalesson and Danko growing out of Kalesson's attentions to Mrs. Danko.

An investigation following the murder showed that the two men had had words the evening of the day before the death of Danko and that Kalesson had been ordered from the house. Kalesson is alleged to have remarked that if he had to give up Mrs. Danko he would kill her husband.

WOULD PROVIDE FOR A NEW COMMISSION

A bill has been introduced in the General Assembly at Harrisburg which provides that the Governor shall appoint a commission of seven members to be known as the Industrial Accident Association. Two of the members would be employees of labor, two employees of mines or industrial establishments, two learned in the law, and one an experienced investigator. It would be the duty of the commission to inquire into the causes and results of industrial accidents. The Governor, under the bill, would designate the chairman and the investigator, who would be the secretary, would be paid 2,400 a year, but traveling expenses only would be allowed the other members.

Various kinds of arithmetic appear to be dependent on different functions of the brain, and are therefore probably inherited independently. If they are inherited at all. To assume that the resemblance between parent and offspring in arithmetical ability is due to association, training and imitation, is not plausible. If this were the case, a class of children ought to come to resemble their teacher, but they do not. Moreover, the child sometimes resembles more closely the parent with whom he has been least associated in daily life.

Life of Seeds.

The life of seeds or the period of germinating power is very elastic and depends much upon treatment received by the seeds after maturity. As a rule many lose their germinating power in two or three years. Among these are corn, parsnips, onions, peas, oats and wheat. On the other hand beets, cabbage, carrots, melons, squash and turnips have all been known to retain vitality for ten years, and some for more than twenty years. Their vitality is dependent somewhat upon the way they were grown but vastly more upon the manner of care.

Enjoyment of the Library.

Church—"It is said there are at least five libraries in the world which contain more than 1,000,000 volumes each." Gotham—"And yet a man couldn't enjoy a smoke in one of these any more than he does in one with only 100 volumes in it."—Yonkers Statesman.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR

It has been said that there is now hardly a city town or village in this country wherein some woman does not reside who has found health in that good old-fashioned remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Therefore if you are suffering from some ailment and hardly know what to do for it and have tried other remedies without help, ask your neighbor if she has ever used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If she herself has never had the need for it, undoubtedly she knows others who were just in your condition and who have been restored to health by its use.

Lasting Memories.

Loneliness seems forever impossible since you went out and left the gate ajar and all the world came in and all its sorrows. The griefs that enter in some strange way solace my own, and this increasing sense of the anguish of the world is lightened and lifted by sharing it with other folk. It is good to feel so passionately and utterly a part of all that lives and throbs and suffers. How fortunate and how unusual in so small a house that the hall leads all the way through from green to green. We shall get all the breezes that blow, as the house faces the west as all houses should face; and always and forever we shall hear the stream. There's a step there at the back, down to the garden walk, that you must remember, you who are absent-minded. I keep forgetting that you are dead.—From the Worn Doorstep.

Superhuman Strength.

Man in ordinary peaceful life cannot even imagine what man or beast can accomplish in the "heat of battle." It is a fact that in battles things have been accomplished which, in the ordinary way of life, would have been thought impossible. But the great excitement of men and horses produces an exertion of strength almost incredible. When after a battle one looks up a steep hill which has been taken by storming troops, one wonders, and asks, how was it possible, that men already exhausted by long marches could possibly take part in a battle and under heavy firing of enemy guns climb the steep heights. Still the impossible has happened, and the exhausted men have thrown their enemies out of their positions.

Imported Cheese.

The most popular varieties of cheese imported, according to special reports made by the collectors of customs in connection with an investigation carried on by the department of agriculture as to the possibility of establishing a cheese industry in this country embracing the local demands are: From Italy, the Gorgonzola, made from the unskimmed milk of the cow; Parmesan, or Reggiano, a cow's milk cheese popularly used for grating into macaroni or soup; Romano, or Pecorino, from sheep's milk; Caciocavalli, said to be thus distinguished because it originally bore the imprint of a horse's head as a trade mark, and Provoloni, a hard rennet cheese from cow's or buffalo's milk.

Sleep Matter of Individuality.

A physician who makes a study of women's nerves and their quality of endurance, asserts that a little intelligence on their part would help immensely in going through life. The reason, he says, that women get exhausted after any endurance test, is that they do not know how to balance work and rest. Sleep in proper proportions is of the utmost importance. It should be taken in moderate doses when one has gone through a tedious time or expects to face one. The seven-hour rule of custom should be utterly abolished. There should not be one rule for every one concerning sleep. Each individual should be her own judge of how much is needed.

Two Historic Lexingtons.

The city of Lexington, Ky., was named from Lexington, Mass., in 1775, by a party of hunters who were encamped on the site of the town when they received the news of the battle of Lexington. The battle occurred April 29, 1775, but some months may have elapsed before the Kentucky hunters heard of it. Lexington was laid out in 1781, incorporated as a town in 1782, and the first newspaper published west of the Allegheny mountains was started there in 1787 to promote the separation of Kentucky from Virginia. This was not accomplished till 1790.

Collar Button Causes Divorce Suit: An elusive collar button was responsible for Andrew J. Emmert abusing his wife, Angeline Emmert, according to her testimony before a master in chancery in suing for divorce. She said when he dropped his collar button and she would not search for it he struck her. A divorce decree is recommended.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

BROUGHT BOY TO HIS DAD

Red Cross Workers Set Out to Find the Young Soldier and of Course They Succeeded.

Dad was from some little town near Cincinnati. He had come all the way to Indianapolis to see his boy, his only son who had been away from home for four years. The boy was in the army and was being transferred. He was to be in Indianapolis on Sunday and wired his father to meet him. Somehow, father and son missed connection in the union station. Dad decided to appeal to the women of the Red Cross canteen booth.

"I was to meet him here," dad said. "He hasn't shown up. I know he's in Indianapolis somewhere."

The canteeners got busy. Dad and his boy had to be brought together. First the canteeners summoned the military police. They got a description of son. The M. P.'s started out to find him. The canteeners also started scouts. They visited every downtown corner and haunt of the soldiers. An hour later the canteeners looked up toward the station door. In came dad and his boy—arm in arm.

"I did just as you told me," the father said. "You told me to go uptown and stand on that corner. You said he'd pass there, and pretty soon he did. The military police kept coming by to ask if I had a trail of him. And then he came. My, but he was glad to see me."

Of course he was glad to see him. The boy's smile told how glad he was to see his dad.—Indianapolis News.

BACK TO HIS OLD FREEDOM

Stormy Petrel, After Brief Stay With Tame Birds, Returns to His Accustomed Place.

"The stormy petrel has left us," said Sergeant McGee of the park police. "He appeared to be getting along with the mudhens like a house on fire, but on Monday or Tuesday last he just faded away, and now he is back on his ocean wave or wherever else petrels go when they get tired of the company of mudhens."

"But a successor has come from the briny deep to keep up the traditions of the blue-water birds on Stony lake. He is only a seagull, and a seagull is not such a rara avis on terra as our lost friend, the stormy petrel. Nevertheless he is the first wild one of his kind that has ever tarried with us for two weeks, and seemed to keep comfortable."

"He has no use for either the ducks or the mudhens. That is to say, he does not mix with them. But he has struck up a friendship with Anthony and Cleopatra, the two pelicans of the Nile, and there is no driving him away from them. Maybe he thinks they will protect him from the mudhens, maybe it is a case of 'the desire of the moth for the star,' and he is in love with one of them. If so, it is only a matter of time when one or the other of them will get jealous and gobble him up in one gulp."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Chip of the Old Block.

It is curious how episodes of the Boer war are recalled by the world conflict, says a writer in the Yorkshire Post. In our issue for May 16, 1900, for instance, we published an account of the bravery in the field of Private E. Wischusen, who threw a live shell over a cliff during an engagement.

Now his son, Private Eric Wischusen, duke of Cambridge's Middlesex regiment, has proved himself to be no less brave. As a parchment certificate from his commanding officer shows, in a raid near Voormezele, on June 19-20, he was "conspicuous for his determination and bravery." Despite a heavy artillery and machine-gun barrage, he reached the enemy trenches, cleared them, and finally covered the raiders' withdrawal, "showing complete disregard to his own safety."

Private Wischusen, who is only twenty, is now in hospital at Loos, with a shot wound in his leg. His home is in Hornsey.

Oil Near Old Indian Cemeteries.

Geologists are unable to explain the fact, proven in Osage county, that oil wells drilled adjacent to Indian cemeteries are good producers. Many such burial sites have been invaded by drillers and in more instances than one riches in crude oil have spouted forth. The largest producer in the vicinity of Pawhuska was drilled beside an Indian graveyard. It is on the summit of a high, rocky hill that overlooks the town.—From the Oklahoman.

In a patented seed tester or a F. Esslinger, a Michigan inventor, a strip of cloth or other material is laid over a pad and then stitched across and lengthwise so as to form little square sections. The seeds to be tested are placed in these squares. The pad retains moisture for a considerable time, long enough to produce germination of the good seeds, and numbers on the squares give a means of record and identification.

More Uses for Electricity.

As might be expected, the use of wire resistances in fabrics to give electric heating has suggested a great variety of applications. Besides the electric pad as a substitute for the hot water bottle these devices include electrically heated bath robes, sweating robes, heating bags, rugs, foot warmers, ear warmers, motorman's gloves and even an electric blanket for the old and rheumatic horse. Electric current may be taken from lighting circuits or special batteries.

SAYS COAL PRICE WILL GO HIGHER

Higher prices for coal in the Pittsburgh district in the near future are predicted by R. W. Gardiner, secretary of the Pittsburgh Coal Operators Association. He is confident there is unmistakable signs of a stiffening of the market. He said there has been some coal sold at an advance of 5 to 15 cents a ton over the government price. The amount is not large, but it is an indication that the operators are holding firmly against the reduction which some consumers have anticipated.

The sales below the government price are now closed and the miners as a whole are getting only about 60 per cent of full running time. There is no disposition to reduce wages, it is said, and the consumer will shortly be fully convinced that notwithstanding the slack demand, they cannot expect to buy coal for less than the present price and must expect at no distant day to pay more.

The operators cannot produce coal below the government rate. They will close down their mines rather than attempt to run for less. Some mines are now closed and the miners as a whole are getting only about 60 per cent of full running time. There is no disposition to reduce wages, it is said, and the consumer will shortly be fully convinced that notwithstanding the slack demand, they cannot expect to buy coal for less than the present price and must expect at no distant day to pay more.
